"The words are creole — raw and reole. Hand-written and heart-felt."

— George Pompelousse

"Criminalization masks the social exclusion of homeless people under the guise of public safety concerns... [i.e.] when cities warn tourists and residents not to give money to panhandlers, they create the fear of homeless individuals that leads to further discrimination. This criminalization then helps to legitimize that fear."

— Illegal to be Homeless 2004

"The artwork of Criminal Reality is Brueghelesque ... the production is stunning!"

— Monty Cantsin
